

Research Summary Report Directions (Essay 3)

You have now completed the first two steps in our build-an-essay project. You now have a first draft essay.

Step 1:

In the next phase of this project, you will be searching for at least one secondary source from the BMCC online library, which you will later incorporate into your in-progress essay.

At this point, however, you will pause in your writing of the essay to write a brief report about your secondary source research.

The secondary source can be:

- a literary critique from one of BMCC's literary databases
- an article from the BMCC database Biography in Context.

Be sure that the secondary source information is relevant to your thesis; e.g. Do not include biographical information that has nothing to do with the point you are making. For example, biographical information about an author's date and place of birth may not be relevant to your thesis. On the other hand, a specific incident from the author's life might be relevant to your thesis.

Sources found on Google are not acceptable, nor are Wikipedia or dot.coms such as blogs. You must use the BMCC online library. This will actually make your task easier because there will be fewer articles to cull through, and all articles are vetted and considered reliable.

Step 2:

Now you will write a 3-paragraph report about your secondary source. In order to receive full credit, you must follow the outline provided below.

Outline

Paragraph 1

- Identify the two literary works you are discussing in your research essay
- Identify the thesis of your essay

Paragraph 2

- Identify the title of your secondary source and the author, if one is given.
- State which BMCC database the secondary source comes from

- State the main idea of the secondary source article

Paragraph 3

- In one or two sentences, explain how the secondary source information helps support your thesis.
- Provide in-text citation and Works Cited citation for the secondary source.
