

The first video talks about a very controversial topic in the United States, this video shows that procedure that women have to go through when they decide to have an abortion and some of them are treated when they arrived to the abortion clinic people that don't agree with women getting abortion. Many of the people protesting outside the abortion clinic believe that life begins at conception and that an unborn baby is still a human being. Doctors who work at the clinic some time are in danger because people against abortion believe they as guilty as the mother because they are the one doing this procedure. Anti-slavery activist felt really glad when things were made more difficult for abortion clinic to operate because the government required them to meet certain criteria "we went from 22 free standing abortion facilities down to 14" this made anti-abortion activist really happy because it was reducing women resources to access an abortion clinic. In the state of Pennsylvania was the first state where the medical stuff was supposed to tell the patient all the risk of getting an abortion and this law is made to make women think about if they really want to do it anyway. Abortion activist believe that women are seen like they can not make their own decisions and that state shouldn't tell them what to do and she believe is wrong. There are two procedure of getting an abortion is the surgical procedure and the pill, activist were trying to convince women not to take the pill and if they did they have 72 hours to reverse the effect. I honestly was a little surprise with the procedure but I also believe is not a man's choice to decide whether a woman's decision. The second documentary, El Barco is basically about how an activist is looking for way to help women get a legal abortion because because in most country abortion is ilegal, she build a movile clinic but a lot of things had to be done before that she needed to rent a ship and the ship insurances and find a captain and a license marines but most important gyncologist,medication there was a lot of things that had to be done. Women in ireland were waiting for this ship to arrived in order for them to have a safe and legal abortion. When the women arrived to ireland there was a group of people who were not very happy with them being there because they are against abortion and believe children should have the right to live, but they told the anti-abortion group that they only there to help human with their basic human rights and they are there to help them. The reproductive justice video basically talk about women should have full right to make decision about their reproductive system and they should have access to healthy procedure when it comes to women reproductive rights. The women experiencing a lot of hate from the people on ireland because they don't understand what they are doing there and the press was really disappointing women there.
