

From the Bowery To Kips Bay.

Kips Bay

It just feels differnt:

like I'm walking with an impediment, and my backpack is too heavy, plus my mind can't calm down.

I snake my way through the mean New York streets slower than I used to, like a sloth who forgot its way home.

i don't feel the same, i don't feel the same

“I'm in a New York State of Mind”

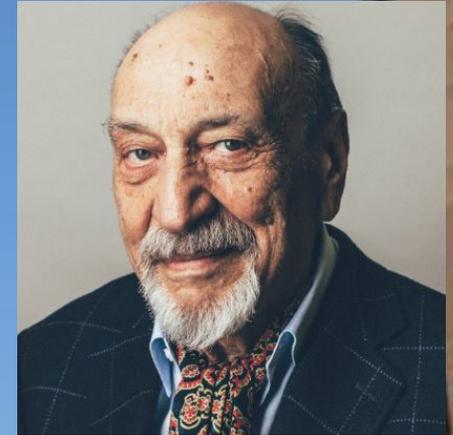

by: Kayla Perez

My name is Kayla N. Perez Munoz, i grew up in manhattan, and i now live in the bronx. Wheni'm older I want to be museum curator. I love Volleyball, reading, and painting. when i was young-er i used to live with my grandmother and my mom till my mom earned enough money to be able to move out and support the both of us.

when I was younger I had a birth-day where my parents took me to the movies with my friends and family. after the movie, when we were about to go to eat, we came across a small fair in the yard of an elem-entery school. me and my friends were very young and we ended up staying in the park, and ordering food for us to eat after we played. I recently found out that we were in the park directly next door from where the man who made the "K3NY" logo worked.

Milton Glaser

Milton Glaser worked acrosst the street from a Elementerdy school called PS. 116. This is the office where he and around 30 or 40 other staff members worked on differ-ent projects and where he worked on the New York Magazine.
