

Professionalism in the workplace, is the absolute key to having a successful, and smoothly run business. Professionalism is something that must be maintained by every individual within the work setting, especially in health care, whether it is the janitor, activity director, nursing assistant, doctor, or even the head administrator. Professionalism encompasses many aspects, such as teamwork, attitude, environment, knowledge, morals, and ethics. Professionalism is expected of everyone and is not something that should have to be commended, because I feel it is a standard.

The founders of the educational practices found in early childhood programs were from Europe and the United States. Friedrich Froebel, John Dewey, Rachel and Margaret McMillan, Dr. Maria Montessori, and Loris Malaguzzi. Also, to help low-income children research by J. McVicker Hunt and others began to dispel the previously held notion that intelligence was fixed and to suggest that early experiences had a significant effect on cognitive development. And this research will help children to be successful in meeting later school expectations.

The National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC) is a professional membership organization that works to promote high-quality early learning for all young children, birth through age 8, by connecting early childhood practice, policy, and the CDA means research. And is the most widely recognized credential in early childhood education (ECE) and is a key steppingstone on the path of career advancement in ECE.

Early childhood educators should know multiple things it depends on the age they're serving for, and how learn them is by community-based training programs, textbooks, national and state standards, and policy documents like the NAEYC' position statement on developmentally appropriate practice. And the related skills are best developed through direct experience with children. Skilled early educators use observation as a tool to help them develop a final finely tuned understanding of children. One of the techniques is a range of assessment. Also working in groups helps children focus more and make relationships with other students. Families and teachers could help each other families and teachers could help each other by supporting children's development and learning.

understanding more about the Environnement children 's learning areas of the learning environment that are appropriate for the age group served and how child health and safety should be considered in the design and maintenance of learning environment. Lastly diversity is an important thing for teacher to learn and know about culture, ethnicity, language, ability and gender.

In conclusion, Piaget emphasized universal cognitive change and Vygotsky's theory leads us to expect highly variable development, depending on the child's cultural experiences to the environment. Piaget's theory emphasized the natural line, while Vygotsky favored the cultural line of development.