Mini Ecological Study part 1

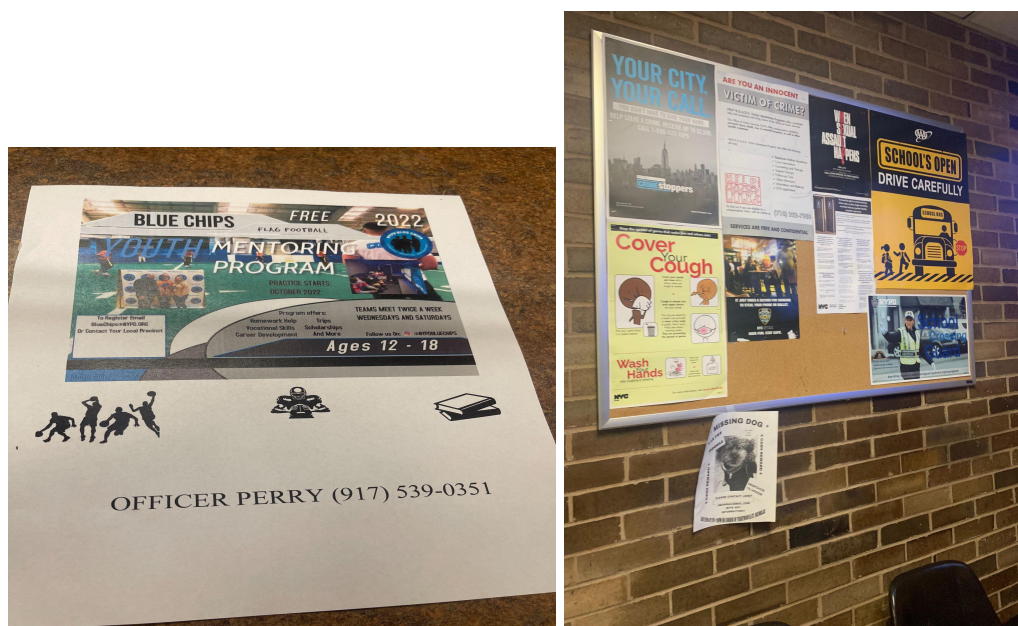

It was a beautiful day sunny and windy outside early morning around 11:00 am on Sunday, September 18, 2022, while walking around knickerbocker ave in my neighborhood you could see that there were a lot of people walking around with their children buying things for their household or even food-shopping at the local stores that we have near which is a lot of them fresh fruits and veggies. In my neighborhood, I observe that there are so many sellers that put their little things to sell in public which you can see in the picture some of the foods as well that are very delicious to get there are a lot of them around my neighborhood. As I walked with my son I saw stop signs for cars to slow down because people were walking and crossing the street with their children too, I love going out in the morning with my son to get some fresh air and to buy some things for him that I need for either in the household or my son formula milk while walking my neighborhood I see that there is a lot of Latinos x who was very loud people still are walking to their destination people are getting Dunkin getting their coffee to go on with their day with some hot or cold coffee I went to get myself some since I love my coffee. As I continue walking in my neighborhood with my son falling asleep we have a police car rolling around to check if nothing is wrong thankfully the neighborhood that I live in is not that bad even though it is very loud but is common because there are mixed of Latinos x everywhere so it normal for them to have the music up. Libraries are close on the weekend but I went to my church near where I live where I did my sacraments at the church is called Saint Barbara Catholic it is a big church for the community people the church has beautiful colors inside and Jesus on the cross I like going in there to say my prayers and let out all of the negative energy that I have and say my prayers so that everything could be better and have a stable mindset for my son and school since sometimes I could get overwhelmed and lose my self which I don't want that to happen but yeah going to church makes me feel better in a way cleaning my mind of anxiety issues. They also offer a program where adults could take some classes as well if they didn't do their sacraments they help them with that as well.

In my neighborhood I did not really see any signs that pointed people with special needs to services but I did see a shelter for elderly people but I did not enter because I don't have relatives who are in the shelter but I did see one outside getting some fresh air. The building looks big and it a a lobby where you give the name of the person who is in there and visit them i saw that sign outside but i did not enter because of covid as well i dont them to get sick since they are sensitive so i just observe the building in the outside and saw the lobby with a women taking the people in. also another thing that i saw while walking we have precinct near also i went inside and asked question where they offer programs to children that are 12 to 18 for free which is interesting because it keeps children being in the streets now a days it will keep them occupied they have different programs that relates with other fun activities as well.

These are the programs that they offer as well they help out with education GED for the adults who want to finish their school which is good since there are students or adults that didn't finish their education and should take these opportunities that they should look into since it is free. I liked walking through my neighborhood and observing many things that caught my attention especially that my neighborhood is a big community been living here since i was little so i basically was raise her until now with my son he going to have the experience as well i couldn't take too much videos or pictures of the neighborhood because the officer told me that it not allowed and i could get arrested which i didn't know so i just took a few pictures of the neighborhood and also it was a nice day to go out and do some homework i usually go out in the morning to get some fresh air and do some errands as well.
